VETERANS MEET IN CHATTANOOGA

City Crowded With Visitors, and Private Homes Are Thrown Open to Accommodate Them. Five Candidates Appear for Office of Grand Commander.

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 13.—Chattanooga has put on her gayest dress, and with flags and bunting, flowers and decorations of all kinds, is to-day anxiously awaiting the opening of the forty-seventh national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic on Monday. This year's encampment marks an auspicious occasion in the history of the G. A. R., for it is not only the first reunion of Northern veterans ever held in the real South, but it is also the centennial of some of the most famous battles fought during the Civil War, in the vicinity of this city. Fifty years ago the armies of the North and South entered into deadly combat on the fields of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge. The fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Chickamauga falls on the last two days of the encampment, September 19 and 20.

Already the city is crowded with thousands of veterans and visitors, and each incoming train adds to the number. Although no official figures have been given out, it is estimated that more than 200,000 strangers will be here by Monday morning, when the city of Chattanooga tenders an official reception to the visiting veterans at the Hotel Patten. The G. A. R. commander-in-chief, Alfred H. Beers, of Bridgeport, Conn., has arrived, and will take a prominent part in the reception and the events of the following days. This reception will introduce the visitors to the citizens of Chattanooga, and will be an elaborate social function, one of the largest that Chattanooga has ever undertaken. A committee, composed of leading citizens, under the chairmanship of the Hon. A. W. Chambliss, a prominent member of the local bar, has been at work for

Stomach Trouble; Wholly Restored!

Mrs. Wilson Robison, 744 Nesbitt St., Toledo, Ohio, writes: "I feel like a new person. I have no more heavy feelings, no more pain, don't belch up gas, can eat most anything without it hurting me. I want to be working all the time. I have gained twenty-four pounds."

"People that see me now say I am now like I was two months ago. I tell them I was ill, and I will say it is the only remedy for stomach and all other ailments." "I am now like I was two months ago. I tell them I was ill, and I will say it is the only remedy for stomach and all other ailments."

and saw me two months ago seem astonished. I tell them I was ill, and I will say it is the only remedy for stomach and all other ailments."

Private Homes Thrown Open.

The Chattanooga Encampment Association, in conjunction with the local chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy and similar organizations, has seen to all arrangements for the housing of the veterans and visitors during the encampment. Because of the limited hotel accommodations, the homes of private citizens have been thrown open. Most of the arriving visitors had secured their accommodations several weeks ago, and they are being conducted to their places of residence for the week with the utmost dispatch.

The same plan of caring for the vast crowds as was used during the reunion of the United Confederate Veterans last May is being pursued in administering to the wants of their one-time enemies. Many prominent Confederate veterans have served on the various committees, and the success of the encampment, which is already assured, is due in no small measure to the work of these veterans, who have thrown themselves into the task of entertaining the men who once faced them on the battlefield. The encampment will in a way, be a reunion for the veterans of both the North and South. General Bennett H. Young, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, who was largely instrumental in securing the peace memorial which will be dedicated in this city in 1915, will in all likelihood be a visitor at the present encampment.

"Battle Above the Clouds." Everything possible has been done to make this week a gala one. Many special features for the entertainment of the veterans and visitors have been arranged, among them being the "Battle Above the Clouds," reproduced in fireworks on Lookout Mountain. This spectacle, taking place on the bench or shelf, half-way up the side of the mountain, where, during the conflict, both sides were enveloped in a cloud, which obscured the view and prevented the contestants from seeing each other, will be visible for miles from the surrounding country.

Another feature in the fireworks line has been decided upon for Signal Point, on Walden's Ridge, north of the city. This point was used as a signal station by the Union army in 1862, and a large signal fire will blaze forth from this point every night during the encampment. The fire will be visible from four States.

Another event will be the sham battle on the field of Chickamauga, between two regiments of the regular army, concluding at historic Shodgrass Hill, where fifty years ago General Thomas Brannon, Steedman and others checked the advances of the Confederates and saved the Union army.

At Warner Park, between Fort Wood and Orchard Knob, in the territory over which the Union forces advanced to the attack of the Confederate position on Missionary Ridge, a collision between two passenger trains will be staged. The collision will take place on a spur of railway track about a mile long, a train being placed at each extreme and sent rushing full speed down the track. Boat and motor-boat races on the Tennessee River, as well as hydro-aeroplane flights, are also on the program of entertainment.

To Meet on Battlefield.

On Saturday, the last day of the encampment, the survivors of the battle of Chickamauga will meet on the battlefield at 10 o'clock in the morning, at a point where the regimental monuments of the Twentieth Brigade of the Third Division of the Fourteenth Army Corps are located. This is on the east side of Lafayette Road, opposite Kelly Field, one of the most picturesque and most historic spots on the entire battlefield. The call for this meeting was sent out by Adam Foust, president of the Chickamauga Survivors' Association, and the exercises at this spot will be under the direction of this body.

The local committee has also arranged to hold exercises on this battlefield, but they will probably be held separately from those held by the association. Many Confederate survivors of the battle have signed their intention of attending this meeting, and the reunion of the Blue and Gray on the field where fifty years ago they fought each other so bitterly, will be a touching bit of sentiment and a memorial to the peace which now unites the once hostile sections into a composite whole.

Five Candidates for Commander.

Most of the time of the visiting veterans will be taken up by sightseeing, but one important piece of business will demand their attention. That is the election of a commander-in-chief. The highest official position in the largest organization of veterans in the world is no small honor, and the rivalry for the distinction is quite keen. Five States are preparing to push their candidates, and in the short time the veterans have been here there has been much electioneering. When the election comes up there may be other candidates in the field as well, but it is expected that the choice will be made from one of the five.

The department of Indiana has endorsed Comrade O. A. Sommers, a private in the ranks. Mr. Sommers lives at Kokomo, and is a popular man with the members of the Grand Army. He has the active and undivided support of his State, and counts on help from a number of the strong States of the Central West, and from every member of the Grand Army, to use the words of a friend and supporter, "who believes that the time has come when a private soldier should be honored."

Why a Six Is Vibrationless Why a Four Shakes So

A FOUR jerks the rear wheels around. The six turns the wheels with a steady, even pull. There isn't a jerk or a jar in a thousand miles. The six rides like constant coasting. It glides over the road—a four bounces. It's the jerk and jar that fatigues. And it is just as hard on tires and car as on passengers. No amount of gears or complication of transmissions will make a four pull like a six. It's in the motor.

Six-Cylinder Left-Side Drive Four Forward Speeds Electrically Lighted and Started Streamline Body

You'll Like the HUDSON Six 54

THIS striking new car marks an advance as important as fore-doors. This streamline body is the coming fashion in motor cars. Already it has captured Europe. The rest of the world is rapidly falling into line. The new style makes possible many important improvements. In the deep, cowed dash we place the gravity-feed gasoline tank. We now carry extra tires in front of the left fore-door. Thus, both fore-doors are unobstructed. You enter the car from either side. On the dash apron we conveniently assemble speedometer, light controls, carburetor adjustment, ignition switches, gasoline level indicator, etc. The use of two disappearing seats, obtained a beautiful, graceful car that comfortably seats either four, five, six or seven passengers.

FAVORS AUTO APPARATUS.

Chief of Lynchburg Department Witnesses Tests in New York.

Lynchburg, Va., September 13.—W. L. Sandidge, chief of the department, who is back after spending a week at New York, where he attended the international convention of the fire department, declared that he was thoroughly convinced that the automobile engines by reason of tests which he witnessed while in New York.

Chief Sandidge expressed the belief that it will take but a few years to replace the horse-drawn steamers with the motor engines, two of which went through a twelve-hour test without stopping. The other nine machines were stopped during the twelve-hour test, but none of them lost as much time as would have been the case with an ordinary steamer.

One of the big machines, he said, which worked continuously for twelve hours, started the test by pumping 1,040 gallons of water a minute, and it finished the twelve-hour work by pumping 1,048 gallons the last minute. Chief Sandidge says the convention was the largest ever held, and never before in his experience has he seen as much automobile fire apparatus as was exhibited there.

NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

Tourists Unnerved by Near Accident at Fishers Hill.

Strasburg, Va., September 13.—Members of an automobile party who said they were from Lexington and on their way to Washington, received the scare of their lives here late Tuesday night. Their car was badly smashed up, and while it has been repaired, they have lost all desire for further travel and decided to go back home.

About 10 o'clock that night Alfred Bly, living in the old Fisher brick house at Fishers Hill, was started by a crash on the Valley Pike. He found that an automobile had been run into the fence erected for the protection of travelers at the sharp curve on the road. Five of the stout cedar posts which supported the fence were ground and the oak boards nailed thereto were broken. The occupants, two women and two men, were on the ground, trying to see the extent of the damage done to the machine.

When Mr. Bly showed them the stone wall to the left and an almost perpendicular declivity from its base demonstrating how narrow had been the escape from instant death, the tourists cried like children, Mr. Bly went to work on their handsome, whose front wheel was out of line and its axle twisted, and had it in shape by 10 o'clock next morning for further travel, which the startled and unnerved tourists decided should be in the direction of home.

At the close of the War Between the States, a man was riding a horse when it became unmanageable and leaped over this wall. Strange to say, neither rider nor horse was injured.

NEWPORT NEWS IN FIRST PLACE.

Newport News, Va., September 13.—The local Young Men's Christian Association has made rapid strides, particularly in the educational and religious departments as the foremost in progress attained, according to the International Year Book, giving the statistical record of the associations of North America for the year ending April 30, which was received by the officers of the association yesterday.

It is interesting to note that in a compilation of the work accomplished in the educational department of the Newport News Association, the statistical record of the associations of North America for the year ending April 30, which was received by the officers of the association yesterday.

Exceeded only by the work in the large modern building in Lynchburg, the association in this city now occupies second place in religious work activities, while a year ago it was ninth.

Newport News is also in the list of larger cities in the United States, having two or more associations or branches, there being but few cities of the population under 100,000, having more than one building. A colored branch having been established at the corner of Twenty-third and Madison Avenue about a year ago.

FAKE FRIGHTENED BROTHER.

Stanton, September 13.—W. J. Bryan, of Craigsville, received three telephone messages Tuesday night, purported to come from Stanton, and the first stated that Shelton Bryan, a brother of the late Shelton Bryan, had been killed in this city. The brother in Craigsville knew that Shelton Bryan was in the hospital.

The second message said: "Shelton badly hurt. May not survive."

The third came over the wire, "Shelton is in the hospital."

The brother in Craigsville made preparations to bring the body home. Yesterday he arrived in the city with all such message complete. It was learned that the brother in Stanton, who had been killed in this city, was perfectly well. There had been no accident, and he had not been near a hospital.

The matter was reported to the police and they set to work to find the person who perpetrated the cruel hoax. At the telephone office it was said that such a message over the wire from Stanton. Some one in Craigsville is believed to have a distorted sense of humor and tried a grim, practical joke.

Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Advertisement.

RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is a serious trouble—it brings on all kinds of misery, often doubles one up, makes life almost unbearable. If not checked in time far more serious conditions follow.

Some claim uric acid is the cause of rheumatism—but they don't know; others claim kidney trouble, liver complaint, indigestion, etc., bring on rheumatism—but they don't know; most of us know the latter complaints do not cause rheumatism; no one knows what uric acid is—ask your family physician.

While you are talking with your physician, ask him about the advertised so-called "cures" for rheumatism. You have a lot of confidence in him. Not one case in ten requires internal treatment—beware of remedies for internal uses, which often upset the stomach and the entire system.
